Introduction

In this age of technology and the web, there are so many websites available to post your blogs in and make them widely known and followed. You might think that only Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and such social networks are only popular for sharing blogs to make them widely read however that is not the case.

This Book will tell you about the other social networks that are not only used by thousands, but they are also popular among users for blogging their content.

Do you know of any other social network that promotes blogging?

Well if you do not know about any other social network that promotes blogs you must read this Book. Bloggers are using several other social networks to boost their followers. Some social networks have been discussed thoroughly in the pages to come. Ways to drive traffic to blogs on each of these social networks has been written in detail.

The Book has tips for bloggers on how to drive traffic to blogs by using other social networks. Every social network has its way of promoting and driving traffic to a blog that a blogger needs to follow.

Chapter 1- Evolution of social media blogging

In 2016, the blogging systems have to take the new and popular social networking services such as Reddit and Wordpress into account and with that, bloggers should also consider the ever so growing streams of personal website services like Medium.

The need to Evolve

It is high time for blogging to evolve Six Apart. Many bloggers forget that blogging is not only about publishing the blog that they have written, but it is also an activity that is communal. Blogging is a lot more than just leaving a comment or comments, but blogging is about making connections and making yourself known. For example, by leaving comments on someone else's blog, you may connect with a well-known blogger who in return may write for your blog and in this process, he may become your friend as well. It is high time to start socializing and start acting.

To make such kinds of relations has become a challenge that has grown bigger because new tools have been launched which makes a person share in a new way. Whichever the social network it may be sharing videos and photos is becoming a challenge and bloggers are always looking for ways to share their blogs and the information of themselves on the internet. More precisely the digital life of blogging is steadily spreading all over the net.

Blog - Aggregator

There are two separate choices to choose. The first option is to select a Social network such as Facebook because millions have opted for this site and the other option is for the blogger to use his blog as an aggregation point or center for all these different services.

For example, in Facebook, the blogger can freely share his photos, aggregate his digital pictures, comment on a friend's wall and also send messages however this does not make the blogger have an identity that is unique, and it does not make him a standout on the internet. On the other hand, the bloggers who blog with features that are social can have a unique identity on the web.

Trend Shifting

The society we are living in today is going into the narcissistic phase at a fast pace; this is due to the internet technologies that are available now. The platforms for the blogging need to evolve just like that to compete with these communal and demographic changes. The bloggers that are blogging now are entirely different from the early bloggers because these new age bloggers have different tools plus services, and they also have a different way of sharing their information.

MySpace has changed the trends of blogging, and so has Facebook. Now day's blogging has become fun and more social because there are many tools to choose.

1. Custom techniques

Most people think that there are not many social networking sites other than Facebook and Twitter. People limit themselves to Twitter and Facebook to post their blogs. Facebook does help in promoting blogs on a large scale, but a blogger must also consider other much newer social networks and platforms to post his blogs.

These social networks have more potential and more features than Facebook. Every social networking site is unique in a way and can drive traffic to blogs in different and innovative ways.

2. The need to improvise

Bloggers need to improvise and change their thinking to be more successful. They need to understand that they should not only use a single website to post their content on but use various social networks. In this way, they can boost their traffic because a blogger can share blogs in different sites and interconnect them at the same time. Every social network has a range of users that a blogger can attract, and these users can gain the blogger more followers through a series of events.

3. Hot shot platforms

The following are some hot shot platforms that have so much potential for bloggers.

Ello

Ello is a social network where a person discovers beautiful art, gets inspired by expressive content, and takes to connect with amazing creators from around the world.

- In Ello, there are no advertisements, and the owners of Ello pledge that the account that a person creates will not be sold out to third parties for commercial use or advertising.
- In Ello being followed and following are asymmetrical. This practice means that a user can follow anyone without being known, and any person can follow you.
- In Ello, everything a user post plus comments are public-private through settings. In this case, anyone can view your page on Ello and outside of Ello if he has a link to your page.
- If a person uses Ello, he gets to place accounts into two categories Noise or Friends.
- A person can post only text, or only media such as photos, audio, and videos or an individual may use the combination of these. A person can edit this combination whenever he desires to.

Medium

Medium is a where you can sign up to interact and read content that matters greatest to you. Readers and writers from a community in the Medium social network and offer unique viewpoints on broad ideas as well as small ones.

Reddit

Reddit is a website that promotes user-generated news links. It helps the writers get votes, and it supports stories to the front page.

Wordpress

WordPress is web software which a user can use to produce a beautiful website, blog, or app. Most people view Wordpress as free and priceless.

Poolwo

Poolwo is a social networking site that is Indian based. It has many features which include blogs, radio streaming, polls, job search, publishing articles and a news aggregation service, plus more old-style social networking capabilities.

Livejournal

Livejournal offers services for journals and blogs; it offers privacy controls, photo storage, publishing tools, style templates, and also online communities for a broad range of interests.

Pinterest

Pinterest is a tool for users which promotes strong visuals and through this social networking platform a user can find ideas for all interests and projects.

Quora

Quora has 1.6 million estimated users who visit the site and engage in it every month. Many people use Quora-like small business owners, starters, entrepreneurs, new readers, students or enthusiast learners, new bloggers, blog starters, solopreneurs, infopreneurs, marketers, buyers or customers, marketing experts, technologists, influencers, professionals and so on.

Google Plus

The social networking site named Google+ is one of the fastest growing. It is a great place to connect with people all around the world plus build relationships and lastly drive readers to your blog.

StumbleUpon

StumbleUpon is a discovery engine which recommends and finds web content to the users. It has many features, and it allow users to find out and also rate pages plus photos and videos that are modified to the person tastes plus interests by using peer-sourcing and principles of social-networking.

Chapter 2- Connect and develop with Ello

Spread ideas in word with Ello

Ello is a user-friendly, safe plus active community where you and different creators share their ideas, publish work and ultimately sell inspirational work. It is a social network that is made for people who make inspirational things to share with each other. It not only made for designers and high-class professional writings but bloggers of every type too. Ello has all kinds of bloggers posting their blogs.

Amateur bloggers can blog on Ello and professionals also, can blog on Ello, which is fantastic. The Ello website is designed as an art gallery. This social network is vast, and it is a place where so many people who are strangers to each other come to one platform and look at a particular workpiece and discuss it.

Explore and post differently

Unlike other social networks to promote your blog on Ello, you would need to take on a simple method. In Ello, you need to take your time and see accounts that are successful at gaining attention for their blogs needs to analyze and look what's popular and echoing in the social network. A blogger needs to follow and talk to others on a regular basis just like Twitter and find new friends and followers.

Experimenting with your blog content and seeing which one works and attracts the most is essential. You would have to keep testing to gain followers. Ello is a social networking site that is evolving on an everyday basis, so you need to be updated with the changes and improvise your blogs with these changes.

If a blogger wants more people to read his blog, then he needs to be there where there is an audience to read his blog. Since Ello has so many people using it, a blogger needs to use it too to reach a wider audience.

As a blogger, your ninety-nine percent of social media activities has to do with writing up a blog. To be known on Ello self-promotion does not work. Researching the culture and what people like on Ello is important as mentioned earlier.

Ello is a new passage for connecting with other people who love blogs on a more creative level. It focuses mostly on visuals so improvise and think how you can use the newsfeed you have to show your blogs in a genuine way.

Just like other famous social networks the profile picture you have, the cover photo you decide to display and the biography that you write are an essential key to presenting yourself with your blog and the newsfeed thus is an extension of this.

Furthermore, in the Ello social networking site you can reshare your blog and this resharing is called “reposting” in Ello. To repost a blog in your stream, you need to click the repost button that comes under the blog.

Numbers that appears to the right side of the repost button shows the blogger the number of times the blog has been reposted already. Clicking the number will indicate the number of people who reposted the blog, and this makes it easy for a blogger to know how much his blog is liked in this way. When a blogger clicks the repost button, the original blog gets locked where you cannot edit it.

Secured blogs

In Ello, a bloggers blog is safe and secure because if the creator of the blog deletes the original blog post, then all the reposts of that blog post will be removed. This feature is not found in any other social networks but Ello.

The blogger has full control over his written blog forever if he uses the Ello website. Ello is an ad-free social network which makes it a secure site for blogging.

Chapter 3 Medium -The community of readers and writers

Medium is a regular and straightforward platform for blogging; it is intended for bloggers to blog on which makes a day of the user fun and these blogs change minds through words. Furthermore, the Medium social networking website also helps bloggers find the right type of audience for their blogs which is on any topic.

Post your blog

The following are ways that a blogger can master and drive traffic to his blogs.

- To increase traffic or have the traffic of readers for the blog you have posted you need to post it on a Saturday. Make sure you publish it in the morning because if you post it in the morning, it will stand out. With the little recommendation, this will make your blog come in the top 20 on Medium on some weekends.
- Bring the traffic to your blog from outside of Medium initially because this will cause the blog get noticed after it has some early exposure from outside of this platform. To do this, all you need to do is to share your blogs with other social Medias like Facebook and Twitter and e-mail friends that are close to you as a blogger.
- To get more traffic on your blog, you need to get your name as blogger noticed. So brand your blog with your name and you can do that by putting your name and have a link to your website.
- Linking images to your blog makes it more interesting and makes it attractive for readers. So many people are attracted just by looking at a single picture; this captures their attention and eventually makes them read what's attached to it.
- For a blogger building a social media flow is important and to do that on Medium a blogger can insert images at the end of a blog and link them to your other social media accounts.
- You can increase you blog traffic by telling your readers to tweet lines of your blogs by adding "Tweet this" text right next to the sentence you want to be tweeted.
- Tag your blogs so that more people know about it on Medium. Tagging is important to get popular.
- According to the Medium team blogs that have 400 words or more words become popular. So write a blog that has 400 words and more.
- Other studies conducted by the Medium team show that a 42 character blog is a clever one to attract an audience for your blog.

- Editing your blog after it has been posted is important. If a blogger sees that a part of the blog is being noticed more then, he must make the text of that part big or bold so that it gets, even more, attention.

- On Medium, a blogger needs to have the notes of the blog public. The audience attracted more when they see proof that people like the blog by seeing some comments written.

- If you need more traffic on your blog, you as a blogger need to publish your blog on the first day because people who do not follow you follow the publication.

- A blogger needs to make his blog stand out, and he can do that by attaching outstanding pictures with it.

- A blogger needs to write his bio and make it appear at the bottom of the blog. In the bio, a blogger needs to put a link to his website so that people visit it.

Ultimate platform for readers

There are more than 650,000 Medium users which make it a standout social networking site. You get to follow 651K followers from the Editors Picks collection by default. For those just starting out with a blog, Medium has an enormous built-in audience. It cuts out the pressure of setting up and maintaining your blog and the potential for a viral hit appears to be great with the mechanisms and audience already in place. Medium is an excellent choice for bloggers who are new to start their career. There is more opportunity for bloggers who already have their names made on Medium.

A unique thing about Medium is that Medium has metrics and stats. A blogger gets to know the ratio of the blogs read rather than focusing on views or visits. To make it simple, Medium focuses on readers rather than the traffic.

The Medium social networking website lets you know the scale of your blog been known by the audience, and it tells you the ratio of the blog being read. Medium calls blogs as stories on its dashboard and other places so that more people are attracted to it. The unique thing about this platform is that it displays the reading time of the blog so the readers know how much time it would take for them to read the blog which is convenient for them.

Chapter 4- All in one Reddit

Step 1- Create an Account

To get started, firstly, a blogger must create an account in Reddit and complete filling in the details like your name and the links you have and other such details. Through this, you can get information about a link sharer.

Step 2- Share blogs to Reddit

After completing your account, you can use any sharing plugin on your blog to share your blogs on Reddit. If your blogging platform does not support plugin, then use any sharing social widget in your blog which will help you out to share your posts directly to Reddit. Once you have a good sharing button, then use it for sharing your posts to your Reddit account.

Step 3 – You must use categories and sections for blog posts

Never share your posts directly without using categories or sections, because it plays an important role. Always use proper categories for every shareable blog that you post.

Step 4- A blogger must fill the description of the blog with an attractive headline

This is evident. You must write a description of your link, and you must also have an interesting title because readers get attracted first by a title and link description.

Step 5 – You must wait for some time and study the traffic

Never think that once you share the links to Reddit, you will get an immediate response because that is not possible. It will take some time to spread over the web. You would see some link referrals from Reddit links within a few days for sure if you shared something interesting with people.

Create blog communities

To have more traffic for your blog, a blogger needs more up-votes in Reddit. More upvotes help a blogger to get his blog on Reddit's front page which is what Reddit wants for a blogger. However a blogger needs these up vote's quick plus fast and these upvotes must be 10 in total initially, this will make the blog go to the top in the subreddit. A blogger will get favors from Reddit if he gets to have 100 up-votes in about an hour.

Your blog will not be useful if it manages to get ten upvotes or more in 10 hours. To get more traffic to your blog, you need to post new blogs. If your post gets a high number of upvotes, then you come on the front page. Make sure not to get down vote.

How to get more traffic for your blog

Make your blog interesting and then post it

The first thing a blogger must do is to share stuff from other sites that are popular because if a blogger posts his blog links people would think you are a spammer and would not like you. Moreover, this will make you get down votes more likely. So post four links from some other site and one link to your blog. Share an interesting blog with information and with photos or videos to attract people. Share blogs that are humorous and engaging.

Interesting title of your blog

When using Reddit give a link title on your blog, that is clear and gives a clear idea of the blog. When you write a blog, make the blogs title out of the box attractive because that is critical to attracting audiences.

Suitable subreddit

A blogger has to consider finding a proper name that fits the blog's content and the subscriber numbers before choosing a subreddit. A blogger needs to be more specific when he picks a subreddit.

If you are enjoying the book so far, please leave a quick review, it takes only 7 seconds.

Publish blogs

Submit

As a blogger take the time to figure out which subreddit is the best fit for your blog. You need to search Reddit and find where the audience for your blog is situated and gathered and pick that subreddit.

When to submit

A blogger needs to know that there is a particular time to submit his blog so that it gets upvoted. The right time will get a blogger more traffic and a good time is to post your blog when most users are online. A blogger needs to post his blog to have more traffic on the blog when the people are actively using Reddit. According to the Reddit team, the best time to post your blog is before five pm EST.

The wait

Your blog would not get immediate traffic, but it will take time. However the people who use Reddit are very well connected, and if your blog does well on Reddit, its links will begin to come across the websites like Digg and StumbleUpon. If you follow the above advice given, then your blog will get support from Reddit, which will boost it.

Comment rate and vote

Being an active member on Reddit is essential. Read other people articles and blogs and comment on them actively and up vote or down vote them and grow your karma points. After you are an active member, then post your blog. Find posts with upvotes that are high in number and give striking comments on those posts.

It will help a blogger to drive traffic to the posted blog link. If people like your comments, they will look at your blogs in curiosity and give your blog upvotes. Finally, people will get to know you and give your blog upvotes and follow you.

Edit and correct

After figuring out where to submit your blog a blogger has to view if his blog is good enough. From the subreddit, a blogger needs to see the posts that are mostly seen. You need to search and find out which blogs are upvoted and have good comments.

Compare the content that is accessible and the content that is down voted by the readers because this will make you figure out what type of content you should have on your blog to get you upvotes. Then a blogger needs to look at his blog and edit it accordingly.

Chapter 5- Publish your creative blogs on Wordpress

Open expression

The first step to promote your blog on Wordpress is to write great content for your blog. You can figure out how to write this great content by figuring out what your target readers think what great content is.

For some blogs and readers, blogs that have multiple parts which have thousands of words written on them are demanded while other users like less content in a blog and more images with it.

You have to look at the topics that are popular among readers and mostly shared by them because you will know what kind of formats the reader reads more. In Wordpress, you need to write outstanding blog titles which are catchy to the eyes of a reader.

Easy share

Social media mixing

Once a blogger figures out what kind of material will make an impact on his target readers, and he finds out where they are active the most, a blogger then must make it easy and convenient for the users to share the blog with friends and more.

WordPress bloggers are lucky to have many plugins that are available which can add social sharing and social media mixing to their websites by just clicking a few times and mostly freely. One option that is popularly used by bloggers is the groups of free tools that are given by SumoMe, which makes a bloggers website grow more traffic for his blog.

SumoMe has appropriate tools, and one of it is the Share app, which puts the social sharing buttons to a bloggers site, and there is also the Highlighter app that allows a reader of a blog tweet quote from the blog easy. On Wordpress, a blogger can use the DW Promobar plugin which is free and which displays a constant reminder to his readers to share his blog while they are reading it. The important thing for a blogger to do is to make it as easy as possible for his readers to share the blog which will drive more traffic for him eventually.

Create social share messages

A blogger can share social share buttons on his website and in addition to that, he can use a plugin that allows him to make customize and also modify his social share messages for each blog. By adding content for the blog for every social network a blogger is hoping to drive his traffic from, whenever the blog is shared, the blog will have more information added to it. The blog could have an image, a photo from the gallery and hashtags so that it becomes more attractive.

The best option that also applies the same methods to the social networks that are popular is the WordPress Social Sharing Optimization (WPSSO). The plugin allows a blogger to upload images and also add additional content to his blog Metadata, which is used. This is put in use whenever that blog is shared by the blogger or the readers. A blogger can create healthy social share messages for his blog that he publishes. This ensures that the bloggers blog stands out among the readers.

Open platform

Ask users to share

When you write the right kind of content for your blog for your readers, and you have added the relevant features to your site for the convenience of your readers to share the blog quickly then you can make your readers share your blog more widely. A blogger must end his blog on WordPress with a call to action or instruction.

Make the readers leave a comment on your blog through these instructions. Make the readers share the blog with their followers and friends. When you make the request at the end of the blog, make sure to present the readers with sharing buttons and through this, you will see that your blog has more traffic of readers. The other way you can make a reader share your blog is by giving them incentives.

Reach the audience

For a blogger to gain more readers to read his blog, he should make it easy to share the blog for the readers. After that, the blogger must wait for the results because the more the blogger is proactive, the better the results.

A blogger needs to collect a list of other bloggers that are doing the same topic then reach them and alert them of his latest blog. Comment on other bloggers blogs to get noticed, so that they read your blog. You can in return tell them to share your blog in this way.

Chapter 6- Poolwo – A growing platform

Poolwo is an Indian social networking website, and this social network has gone worldwide famous. It is yet another great platform for bloggers to post their blogs and get massive traffic to read and share their blogs. The more the users using the Poolwo network, the more the traffic which is generated for a bloggers blog. For having more traffic for your blog, a blogger needs to tag and share it a lot.

International

Poolwo is a social networking platform where a blogger can connect with audiences worldwide plus share his blogs and pool every activity of his blog with his friends. Poolwo gives much space to a blogger to pool his blog under one umbrella. Poolwo is a great and one of its kind experiences of blogging and getting as much traffic as possible.

Traditional

The Poolwo social networking website is a regular website which has a large number of features and one great feature for a blogger is that it has links to access blogs. This means as a Poolwo user you can make links to your blogs that the audience can use. The Poolwo audience is growing day by day.

There are options to write blogs, and a blogger can post his blog which automatically gets updated in the general news feed. There is a poll menu that is used for online voting on blogs of various topics that allows a blogger conduct polls about the blog. The Poolwo website has a storage space called the 'briefcase' that allows bloggers users to store their blogs.

Chapter 7- User-friendly Livejournal services

Wide usage

The LiveJournal service is known widely as an excellent community blogging oriented site. Livejournal is geared near community blogging which is general with your friend's links which go all over the place. The website has editing sites. Livejournal has a real benefit because it emphasizes on communities.

The primary purpose of the Livejournal is keeping the bloggers on the site, and it allows bloggers to join the never ending list of conversations and forums. So many bloggers post their blogs and link them straight to the site. The site is traditional, and the blogs posted support one another by back linking and comments.

User interaction

A blogger needs to create content for his blog that the people who enjoy it and choose a topic that can quickly become familiar. LiveJournal services have communities that a blogger must explore to know which topic is in the hot stream so that he makes his blog accordingly. This will drive traffic to the blog in massive quantities.

Blog community

Creating a new blog is simple as LiveJournal uses a scaled-down style of its competitor's creation spaces. LiveJournal gives a free platform for bloggers. However, a blogger can opt for a premium site. While, on the open platform, bloggers blogs has advertisements, and they do not get any benefits from these advertisements.

On the other hand, the premium site does not have advertisements. The premium version gives a blogger add space to his media library by providing more storage for your blogs.

Chapter 8- Pinterest- The users platform

Wide usage

Pinterest is widely becoming a website where people go to read the blogs of their interest. However, you need to drive traffic to your blog when you write one.

Boosts traffic

Step 1- A blogger must create a profile that is good and complete

A blogger must firstly register his name on Pinterest and then complete his profile by pouring in every detail that is required. A blogger must make sure that he also writes details of his blog and his website in the contact information. After he is done doing that if it is possible for a blogger, he must then connect his Pinterest account with Twitter and Facebook because that will get him some automatic followers eventually.

Step 2- Your blog needs a separate Board so make that

After you have completed building your profile, you must make a board separately for the images of your blog. This practice will make your blog standout because if you do not make a separate board for your blog images, then the look of the board gets spoiled. You must keep your board neat and put images that are clear.

STEP 3- A blogger needs to use clear and elegant images that are professional in his blog

For a blogger to share his images of his blog plus site, he needs to have some good images attached with the blog. For that a blogger needs to use good images that go with the blog and a blogger must use relevant images that go with the content as well.

Have the blogs name used as a watermark to mark the images in the blog so that other people do not use your image or steal it to use for other purposes. A blogger must use images that have high quality and those that are aesthetic and make his followers re-pin it from his dashboard.

Step 4- A blogger must use social buttons To share photos in Pinterest

Whenever a blogger publishes anything that is new on his blog with photos, he should never forget to pin the photos because this will make the readers respond fast on his blog. A blogger must use widgets and social share buttons on his blog where his readers can pin his blog photos to their Pinterest profile.

Step 5- To get traffic on a blog a blogger needs to get followers and a blogger needs to spread his images

You must give permission to your friends to connect to your Pinterest network and also connect with some friends who already joined Pinterest. A blogger can also connect his account with Twitter and Facebook. In Pinterest, you must follow other people so that you get followed however getting followers will take some time on Pinterest.

The following are some tips to drive traffic to a blog

- To drive traffic to your blog, the first thing you have to do is to create a board on Pinterest especially for your blogs. This in return makes the followers easy to find the blog post and follow the blog board. Then you have to make the title of your blog and make the title of the Pinterest blog board the same.
- Name your board with keywords so that it shows up in the search engine quickly. When you write a blog post, Pin it to your blog Board. Have a summary or quote, from the blog on the Pinterest board and an image that goes with the blog plus a link that goes directly to the blog.
- To drive traffic to your blog attracts readers with images on Pinterest. You need visual appeal to stand out in Pinterest to evoke readers to read.
- You need to interact with the followers because this will turn the fans into the blog readers you want. If you interact with readers on Pinterest, they would want to connect with you and read your blog.
- Have proper SEO techniques when you post your blog on the site.
- An awesome way to drive traffic to your blog is by posting attractive and communicative content. Put matches straight on your blog. Then you need to pin it to your particular contest Board. When you make a contest known on your blog, your goal must be to drive traffic straight to your website. Make your pins searchable and make it public so that people find it quickly.
- Use an attractive photo of yourself on the board so that people can see it and are attracted to it.

□ When the readers share your blog, your readers' Followers, and Friends eventually read it. This is a word of mouth for the blog. You need to have a Pin it button on all the blogs you write to make this happen. These pins make the traffic boost.

Chapter 9 –Tumblr- The microblogging site

Teenagers and adults prefer to use Tumblr nowadays rather than Facebook. Here are four ways to help a blogger get more views and followers for his blogs on Tumblr.

Hub of images

In Tumblr to draw attention to your blog, one must upload a fascinating and attractive image or images with it. It is very commanding to have images with your blog on Tumblr because it gives your blog character and it also helps to attract other readers who are looking for great content and the latest content plus photos.

Tumblr has users who demand to see pictures because text may capture few readers but text with images are highly required and shared.

Tumblr finds readers

Tumblr praises blogs that have a single subject. Humorous blogs are widely liked on this site. It also helps if you have an entertaining blog to post. However a blogger must write about what he is interested in and knows about the subject thoroughly, and Tumblr makes sure readers find it.

Nonstop posting

In Tumblr to have a fan base that is consistent, you need to keep posting every day. A blogger needs to bear in mind to tag his blog post with phrases and as many of them as he can. In this way, more readers will check his blog.

Ideal theme

Tumblr is a social media network which is highly visual so you have to have a well-designed site for your Tumblr because this could control the number of people who view your site on an everyday basis. This social network has so many themes that a blogger can choose from, and it all depends on his taste.

Chapter 10- Quora – Recognition guaranteed

Quora lets you create a blog. An average Quora writer gets a monthly of 30,000 plus views. With Quora blogs, every user on Quora gets to have personal space to write about anything, and showcase themselves to more people. With Quora blog, brands and individuals get to have a great way to have more traffic.

People who are not known at all as bloggers have a great chance of being recognized and start off their blogging career. The site is ideal for individuals who do not want to spend much time searching and sharing their blogs to drive more traffic and build their audience in the long run.

If you write great blogs and do not have followers and do not get to have much traffic on your blog, then Quora is a perfect place to write your blogs. Through Quora, you can get your blog get known fast without doing anything but writing. You can get an enormous amount of readers reading your blog If you just write a great blog in Quora.

Expand audience

Many bloggers already use Quora boards to re-post their blogs and expand their audience. Blogs on Quora makes this republishing experience even better.

To attract more audience to your blog, you need to put a brand image with your blog on Quora. In addition to that, a blogger needs to put up a brand logo. To attract readers put an avatar on your Quora blog and select the theme, you desire.

After choosing a theme create a blog and post it so that when people land on your Quora blog, they will always have something to know about your blog.

12. Follow important questions

There are no such social media such as Quora. It is a great platform for blogging. A blogger can use the blogging platform to strengthen his blogs. Quora is an exceptional place, where people come up with questions to their problems and write it on the site to get suitable answers.

Chapter 11- Get lucky with Google Plus

Without the traffic of readers on your blog site, your blog post will not be read, even if the quality of your blog is great. By using Google+ a blogger has tremendous opportunities to promote his blog and also drive traffic to it.

Having traffic to a blog site is a vital part of marketing. It is all about cross-promoting your content and the more you cross it, the more attention it will get. The more attention the blog will get the more the blog will get shared. Moreover, when there is an increase in share you will get a better search ranking.

There are nine steps to drive traffic to your blog in Google plus.

Business page

In step one to drive Traffic to Your Blog through Google plus a blogger must have a Business Page on Google Plus. A blogger must make a business page on Google plus. Creating a business page is just like creating a business page on the ever so famous Facebook. A blogger needs to have his personal Google Plus to make this site.

A blogger can give his location, his category of business and can modify his profile image and also his tagline and the section of introduction. A blogger must also include his website.

In the process of your page setup, a blogger must use the cover photos that are large because that will attract the reader.

How to drive traffic to your blog?

1. You must have your blog URL included in your section that is the introduction section, and also have a good call to action which is used for saying why a reader should visit your site.
2. There is a Links section where you must have your blog site included.
3. You must make a profile image with a call to action to your blog or with an arrow indicated to your blog.

Blogger must share the blog with their friends or circles provide a brilliant opportunity to share blog posts to the targeted readers. Circles and friends are a way to segment Google Plus users that a blogger follows. A blogger can segment his friends for emailing only.

This section helpful for bloggers because people in your circle would not know what division you have put them in and they would not get offended as a result.

To promote a blog, a blogger must share the blog with the target audience, and he must connect with this target audience by writing particular updates for his blog.

For example, if a blogger has written a blog on a brand new product then he can post particular updates to the segments he has made of his friends on Google Plus.

1. If a blogger wants his readers to read the blog, he can share the blog with the customer circle he has segmented. The blog must have an update written to it with prices included and why the readers need to buy the product.
2. If a blogger wants other fellow category bloggers to read the blog he shares the blog with his industry leader circle with an update written and with requests for reviews.

- Connect in Communities

In step 3 a blogger must connect in communities.

In the Google Plus communities, a blogger gets to be provided with outstanding ways to expand a bloggers reach and to network online.

Circles are very different from the communities provided in Google Plus. The communities are groups that are online. These communities are modern and interactive as well. These communities are very easy to use and are not expensive at all. These communities are great where a blogger can meet different readers and share his blogs with. Moreover, for business, these communities are a great marketplace. There are many communities on Google Plus from which a blogger can choose from. All a blogger needs to find out is what community suits him the best. The best thing about this is that if a blogger does not find a community that fits with his topic he can make his community but it must be noted that it takes the time to be observed in newly built communities.

For example, if a person has a business of fishing gear and a blogger writes a blog about the various types of fishing products. The following steps are a quick scan of how to use communities on Google Plus to drive traffic to your blog site:

- Firstly you must search for 'fishing' in the communities, and you will find many results:

After you find the results

1. You must join up a few of the communities that are the most related to the fishing products you have.
2. Then you must participate in the dialogues that are taking place in the community.
3. You must comment on updates and share posts you like.
4. Through this, you will be able to know a lot of the people who like fishing fast.
5. After you have a stand and you establish yourself then post links to your blog in the communities you have developed relations in.
6. By this way, your updates will get shared plus commented on plus read. In this way, you will get many readers to read your blog too
7. Lastly, when you share your blogs in the Communities, you must write a brief summary of your blog and make questions at the end of it to engage your reader. Moreover, you must add specific hashtags to reach to your particular market.

Use of hashtags

In step 4 the blogger must make the use of Hashtags in his blog post to drive loads of traffic to his blog.

Hashtags are a new thing Google Plus and they are used with a view to reaching the target audience on Google Plus. Hashtags enable a blogger to categorize his updates and also helps a blogger to get found in the search engine of Google Plus.

To use hashtags there are some important strategies for a blogger to keep in mind:

1. A blogger must have a minimum of one to three tags included in his blog post updates. However, less is often more in hashtags. This shows a blogger that he knows whom he wants to reach, and he knows the key elements of his blog post he is sharing in his update.
2. You must create tags to include thorough subjects. The more granular you get in hashtags, the more likely your post is going to be found, read and clicked on by the interested target readers.
3. You must create tags to support a campaign. A blogger can use hashtags to create a shared and interactive category about a marketing campaign his business is running. For example, if a blogger is hosting a promotion or contest on his blog he can create hashtags to boost your publicity of the promotion and in this way the community can participate in that promotion publically.
4. A blogger must use hashtags when he is posting on public posts, communities, and circles.

If you are enjoying the book so far, please leave a quick review, it takes only 7 seconds.

a blogger must not post his whole blog at once at all

It must be noted that Google plus updates do not have to a restriction on word or character count. A blogger can post his entire on Google Plus at a time on the Google Plus page. However, a blogger must not do that

If a blogger posts a blog that is very long the following things can happen:

- The blog will look visually boring, and readers would not read it by the site of it. This can be inevitable if a blogger adds a video that is cool about the blog itself.
- The long blog can and will be short of sharing fast.
- The long blog would not be interactive since fewer people will read it.

To get more traffic to your blog on Google Plus do not post the entire lengthy blog. Rather than doing that a blogger must give teasers to his blog. A blogger must write one or two paragraphs to introduce the subject of his blog and with a view to connecting with his target audience and to intrigue them to read. Long posts are annoying and scare away readers. Have little but interactive and juicy information in a few paragraphs to grasp readers.

Authorship

In step 6 to drive more traffic to a blog, a blogger can sign up for Authorship on Google Plus, which is amazing.

Another way to drive traffic to your blog on Google Plus is to sign up for Google Authorship. This is critical as it drives much traffic to a blog. The Google Authorship helps a blogger to build his influence online and creates a visual tie to his posts in the searches. It must be known that blogs look more tempting, and reliable with a face beside it. Google Authorship is the best way to drive more traffic for bloggers.

Hangouts

In the eight step to drive more traffic to a blog post, a blogger must host Google Plus hangouts.

To gain more traffic and networking, and create a tighter posse within G+ a blogger must host a Google+ hangout. A blogger can use it in conjunction with blog posts, to get people reading his blogs. After that, the blogger can discuss the blog on a weekly or monthly basis. A G+ Hangout is like a free video conference that is cool. A blogger can have about as much as ten readers participating in the video conference. A blogger can use these video conferences for industry interviews, for monthly gatherings and also as private internal meetings. A blogger can share his Hangouts on his YouTube channel too for other people to watch it and eventually follow your blog.

This feature provided by Google Plus is a great way for driving more traffic to a bloggers blog post.

People can listen to most of the Hangouts of Google Plus on Youtube, and most of them have open invites where you can join in, and you can know the readers you are looking for and find out more about them. The more a blogger knows about his target audience, the more his blog posts and links will get shared among the readers.

+ 1 Button

The last step which is the ninth step is great. Bloggers must have the + 1 Button included in his blog post.

Lastly and the most important of all tip to drive more traffic to your blog a blogger must make sure he includes a +1 button in all of the blogs that he posts. This is a very useful feature provided by Google Plus as it drives much traffic to a blog and it must not be overlooked at all.

The G+ button makes it easy for the bloggers readers to share the blog posts to their public feed, their communities, and their circles.

The Easy steps

To get you started on Google Plus, the following are the ten tips to help a blogger increase his blog traffic

Make a profile that is complete

A blogger must use his personal Google+ profile to connect with his blog audience. The very first step to do this is to create a complete profile that completely describes who you are, what expertise you have to bring to the table, what your blog is about, how to find your blog and what makes your blog unique.

Connecting with readers

Once a blogger creates his profile page on Google Plus, he needs to start connecting with other Google+ members. He must first search for people he knows. After that, he must look through the people his friends follow to find more interesting people to follow. Furthermore, as a blogger spends time on blogs and other social networking destinations, he must look for links to connect with other appealing people as well.

Make Circles

The next thing for a blogger to do is to make circles categorize his Google plus connections and then segment people into the appropriate circles you want them in. For example, you can make circles for your blog readers, blog post sources, individuals who influence your target audience and people who can help you promote your blog or publicize it.

Sending Target Messages

When you publish updates to your Google+ page, it is easy to share updates, and you can choose which segmented circles you want to share you want to share your updates in order for the right audiences to get the good messages that you want them to read. This feature is great because it makes you relieved and it ensures that the people get the messages you want them to read and the people you do not want updated do not get updated.

Publish Interesting Content

You must not publish links to your blog posts again and again because it becomes tedious and people will view it as unnecessary self-promotion. The Google Plus stream of updates must be exciting and meaningful to the audience you are trying to capture and should not be spammy. Therefore, you must publish plus share the updates that are interesting and attach links that the target audiences you are trying to capture will value and be grateful for seeing.

Spark things up

Spark things up by making keywords that are related to the blog topic that you have written and created conversations that are relevant to the topic. You must share the content and the updates that other people publish, and that is related to your blog topic which the targeted audience will enjoy. You must also look for people that are new so that you can connect with them on Google Plus and so that they get to follow blogs that are outside of the Google Plus platform.

Host Hangouts

A blogger can have about as much as ten readers participating in the video conference. A blogger can use these video conferences for industry interviews, for monthly gatherings and also as private internal meetings. A blogger can share his Hangouts on his YouTube channel too for other people to watch it and eventually follow your blog.

This feature provided by Google Plus is a great way for driving more traffic to a blogger's blog post. People can listen to most of the Hangouts of Google Plus on Youtube, and most of them have open invites where you can join in, and you can know the readers you are looking for and learn more about them. The more a blogger knows about his target audience, the more his blog posts and links will get shared among the readers.

Mass Huddles

You do not have to hold tweet chats on Twitter instead of that a blogger can have a Google Plus Huddle. A Google Plus Huddle is a text chatting between members of Google Plus. You can create that on your blog to make people interact with each other and hold dialogues.

Put together and Cross-Promote

A blogger must use social media networking icons such as Facebook social plug-ins or other plug-ins to put together his blog market hard work and cross-promote his blog content. A blogger must give the readers various ways to find his blog and connect with him as well.

Being Active

You must update the Google plus stream as often with new material and also make sure that you spend time commenting on the other updates of members too. Due to this activeness, more people will remember who you are and get familiar with your blog, and this will make them read your blog and click on it.

Chapter 12- The perks of StumbleUpon

It is hard to manage different social networks for a blogger, and it can also become a challenge as well because every social media platform works in a different way altogether. Each social platform is different because each has a different requirement of image size; each attracts a different audience and so on.

Moreover, it takes much time to figure out how to drive traffic to your blog for each one. StumbleUpon is a great social network, and it is a great traffic source for blogs.

Your Posts- Add them

You must write a blog post every day and add it to StumbleUpon. If a blogger has social share buttons on his blog, he can add it on the blog. However, it is advised to post your blog directly on the StumbleUpon social networking website. By posting it on StumbleUpon, you will be allowed to choose the category the blog post will go in, and you will also be able to add tags.

Often Stumble

Engaging is crucial in Stumble upon social platform just like the other various social networking media platforms. It is important for a blogger to participate with the other posts on StumbleUpon. By using StumbleUpon, whenever a blogger pushes the button named "Stumble", it brings him to a page that is new which has blogs, articles, pictures and other stuff.

For a very page that is opened a blogger can give that page a thumb up or a thumb down. By doing this it will help a blogger to drive traffic to the sites he liked, and it will also tell him that what types of pages the site should show him next time.

Pull in Pages

A blogger should be liking pages and also adding pages as well. When a blogger finds a blog post that he wants he must look for its social media buttons and add its blog post to StumbleUpon. By doing this, you can drive traffic to other blogs that are worthy of it and in return StumbleUpon will send more readers to your post when you are sharing other blogs.

The Routine

Here's is what a blogger needs to do every day to ensure that he gets more traffic for his blog what from StumbleUpon.

Have a blog post written and posted on StumbleUpon every day preferably in the morning.

Meanwhile, throughout the intervals of the day, a blogger must add other posts of blogs that he likes on StumbleUpon. A blogger must use StumbleUpon in the evening for a while and like other people's posts.

After that while liking plus adding the other blog posts, a blogger must engage with a minimum of 15 other blog posts. In this way, StumbleUpon rewards a blogger and sends him more people to his blog post.

It only takes a few minutes every day to share a blog post and communicate with other readers and bloggers to drive traffic to your blog by using StumbleUpon.

Chapter 13- Standout

Reliable content

To drive more traffic to your blog you need to stand out and one of the ways to stand out is by analyzing your blog accurately as you can. Make sure your blog is solidly put together, and it is different from any other blog.

A blogger needs to have relevant photos on his blog as well. Make sure to use believable active content in your blog. A blogger needs to have big fonts which are noticeable by the reader, and the fonts must not be colorful.

A blogger must have a functional blog which has active links attached to it plus active plugins that do not run out. You must make your blog has less clutter and make it as short as possible. A blogger must write content that is modern and attractive. A brief introduction of the blog is essential to show what your blog is about.

To make your blog stand out, you must write eye-catching headlines plus subject lines. If readers come to see a post which has an eye-catching title they will most definitely read it.

You must consider that headlines affect the possibility that a user will click on a cross post or shared blog link. Headlines and titles that are interesting are important to have an interest of readers who have found your link that has been shared multiple times.

Create content that is strong

Lure the readers by using killer headlines: You must know as a blogger that without a headline that stands out, your blog has little chances of being read by the readers. So to lure people to read your blog take out some time to make a killer headline that attracts people and makes them read your blog.

The blog design must have the perfect professional look: As you all know first impressions are the last so even if you write your blog for professional reasons or personal reasons you must show the readers that you are serious about your writing and to show that you must have an attractive blog design incorporated.

Attractive topics: A blogger needs to write about things that are trending, and he must boost the information he is writing on by writing something that is talked about. You must notice that politics and celebrity gossips are topics that are read more than any other blogs.

Write stories that are great: Stories are attractive, and people read them out of curiosity so to make your blog even more interesting put together stories on your blog to make it memorable.

Fit in Keywords: Information that is written in a blog can be searched on the web. So for readers to search your blog fast and easy, you must have one keyword optimized to it.

Have visuals added to your blog for attention: People tend to get attracted by visuals quickly, so use photos and graphics that are related to your blog so that people get attracted and read your blog eventually.

Use media formats: A blogger can also use audio or video presentations to get people to read his blog. However, a blogger needs to use audios and videos that are related to the information written on the blog.

Easy to read the text: Posts that have tiny text that is so long tends to scare away readers because readers do not like reading so much and so little. To make the blog convenient, a blogger needs to write paragraphs that are short and have bullet points.

Link with blogs: A blogger needs to point out to other information that is relevant because it is imperative. By doing this, a blogger can get highlighted and gets noticed by other important content writers.

Have cross-links with valuable information on the blog: A blogger needs to link the appropriate information of the product or the articles mentioned in the other parts of the websites you have.

Keep publishing and do not lay back: Now a day's bloggers have become lazy, and they are not consistent. To become successful, a blogger needs to be consistent and write and publish blogs daily so that readers know that you are in business, and you mean business.

Guest bloggers must be invited by a blogger to write for his blog: By inviting guest bloggers to write for your blog is helpful since if the writer is famous and has skills and has a huge fan following.

Interview people that are known in the field you are interested in: By interviewing someone that is a famous blogger in your area of interest can get you have visibility among readers.

Consistency is a key

A blogger needs to be active and update his blog so that he does not lose followers. If you find it hard to update your blog weekly, you need to look at blogs like yours and find ones that have many comments and followers. Only a controversial blog gets many comments so you can use the response to the blog you have found to someone else's blog as a foundation for your entry.

If the theme of your blog is unusual and you want to post it, you need to mention it and post it under the link. In this way, the followers will read your blog because they will appreciate that you are thinking about their time and interest.

More keywords

Working on your blogs content and include keywords and make sure to use a lot of them. This inserting of keywords will boost your search engine ranking because you are making sure that you are using words that most readers are attracted to. You need to take the viewpoint of your possible readers.

Mixer of networks

Post your blogs with their links on different social networks, discovery engines, peer-sourced and news feeds. This is a very simple way to make interest in your blog among bloggers and non-bloggers. In this way, you get your content out on as many venues as you possibly can. Consider using your personal social media accounts and email signatures to get people who are already connected to you connected to your blog.

So, how to promote your blog among readers?

Bloggers must send their blogs to readers by email: A blogger can submit his blog by emailing it directly to the users because this can expand his audience.

Give RSS feeds: A blogger must make his content easy to reach to the readers and he can do that by providing the content through the method they like.

A blogger must share his blog on social networks: When a blogger writes a blog, he must share it or post it on every major social network that he can post on.

Add the blog's URL to the social networking profiles: By adding your blogs URL in the social network your using you can make your blog be seen by more readers through this.

A blogger must write as a guest blog: By writing as a guest blogger, a blogger can write and let the readers read the best writing you have written so that your name gets known by the other bloggers and the other blogger's readers.

Have the blogs bling: A blogger can get his blog recognized, and he can make it known on the top of its category. A blogger can make this known by displaying the earned badges on the blog.

Use various media: A blogger can promote his blog among his connections and by promoting it on social media platforms.

In a bloggers email signature files, he must add a link: As an alternative to his company website, a blogger must include his blog address.

Have a contest: Give incentives to get possible readers attracted.

Cross blog

You simply need to share an entry from one of your blogs with another one of your blogs. You can do that by providing a link or either by copy and pasting or by both ways. Due to this different method types of readers can get interested in your blog. If there is more than one blog, you want to promote then cross-post entries from the blog that needs to be accessible to the most popular blog you have.

In this way, the readers who follow one of your blogs might follow on the other blog as well. You can have the attention of different bloggers and the followers they have by using blogging programs. Use blogging platforms as much as you can find to publish your blogs.

Conclusion

This Book has given you a detailed view of some of the best social networks that you can post your blog in and boost followers. Every social network has its unique way of driving traffic to a blog. Include social sharing in every blog: When a blogger posts his blog he should have social sharing at the very top and the bottom of the blog post so that readers share the blog with their friends.

A blogger must comment on the other blogs other than his: A blogger should not leave comments that are spammy with his links to the blog. Instead of that he should participate in conversations and form relations with his readers and other bloggers.

A blogger should be active and give a response to the comments that come on his blog: A blogger must answer the readers who take out their time to read his blog and comment on it. A blogger must say something apart from a thank you comment to build a relationship.

A blogger must take his time and take part in Twitter chats: A blogger must not push his blog first, but he must introduce himself when he enters into the conversation.

A blogger must answer the questions on the question and answer sites like LinkedIn and Quora: A blogger must use social networking sites such as Quora to show how expert he is.

A blogger must use social networking sites and advertise his blog to drive audience: A blogger must use advertisements on some selected social networking sites to engage predictions. For a blogger to get his blog noticed by readers, he must have good content; he must let readers know that the blog does exist, and lastly a blogger must make the blog very easy to share with other people.
